

Privacy Policy

Armstrong is committed to communicating with you in a professional manner and protecting your confidential information. We use the information you provide (e.g. name, address, phone number, email, etc.) to contact you to share information about our services. We will not share your information with any third party outside of our organization, other than as necessary to fulfill your request. Armstrong does not sell, trade or rent your personal information to others.

Logging and Cookies

When you browse our website, the following information about your visit is collected and stored: the computer's Internet Protocol (IP) address (a number automatically assigned to your computer when you access the Internet); the domain from which you access the Internet (for example: aol.com, for an America Online account), the website address from which you came to our site (for example: www.google.com, if you came by clicking a link from a Google search); the date and time you arrived at our site and how long you spent here; the name and version of your computer's operating system and browser Example: Windows 7/Internet Explorer 8.0; the pages you visited.

We also use "cookies" on Armstrong's website. A cookie is a piece of data stored on a site visitor's hard drive to help us further determine usage of our site and sources of site traffic, improve access to our site and identify repeat visitors.
